

Chapter 4 Summary

- In order to cope with the complexity of a social system, the SAT model requires the use of a PAL project cycle, horizontal and vertical integration, and networks of effective action.
- Implementing a more systemic practice also requires changes in how the current peacebuilding system works. Currently evolving practices for assessment and planning in governmental and nongovernmental agencies may be an entry point for implementing more systemic practices, such as the SAT model.
- See Tables 4.1 and 4.2.